Trudy Hanson Fouser is regionally and nationally recognized as an exceptional trial lawyer. She has defended health care facilities, businesses, and professionals in more than 65 civil jury trials involving medical malpractice, employment, and personal injury.

Chambers USA interviewees laud Trudy as an “excellent litigator” and praise her “ability to effectively manage litigation and achieve a successful outcome . . . along with a gifted ability to persuade and present her point of view.” Benchmark Litigation interviewees hail Trudy as “the leading female litigator in Idaho,” and say that “Trudy’s 20 years of experience in defense litigation makes her the top choice for very difficult and technical matters, particularly in catastrophic injury claims.” Best Lawyers[®] named her the “Medical Malpractice Law – Defendants ‘Lawyer of the Year’” in Boise in 2021, and “Personal Injury Litigation - Defendants ‘Lawyer of the Year’” in Boise in 2015, 2019 & again in 2022. She is also consistently ranked as one of the top 50 women lawyers in the Mountain States by Super Lawyers.

Trudy’s superior trial skills have resulted in her being inducted into two prominent and invitation-only trial organizations – the American College of Trial Lawyers (ACTL) and the American Board of Trial Advocates (ABOTA). A lawyer must serve as lead counsel in at least 50 civil trials that are tried to jury verdict to become an Advocate of ABOTA. She is one of only 12 lawyers, and the only female lawyer, in the State of Idaho who has been inducted into ABOTA.

Trudy is a volunteer attorney with the Idaho Volunteer Lawyers Program (IVLP)’s Soundstart program, and she helps educate low-income parents about how to prevent legal issues involving custody, paternity, child support, guardianships and other family-related matters.
